Gettysburg Academy Opens.

Gettysburg Academy opened on Tuesday with the largest enrollment in its history, a fact most gratifying to all friends of the institution. Sixty pupils were present on Tuesday, and a few more have entered since. The Lower School in charge of Miss Campbell of Hagerstown, opened with ten children between ages of 4 and 12.

Dr. Charles H. Huber, head master has been Dr. Granville's right hand man in pushing the canvas for the funds for the new building. He threw himself into this work enthusiastically and to him comes now the special gratification of seeing the culmination of these efforts in the only thorough up-to-date preparatory school in the Lutheran General Synod.

The equipment of the Academy is unique and thorough in every department. The kitchen is declared by all who have seen it to be a wonder of efficiency, with every modern labor saving convenience, so that three people will be able to look after all details of kitchen and dining room. Nearly all the rooms are occupied and they have been tastefully furnished. The new Academy is a great credit to all who have contributed toward its establishment.

Fire Protection Day.

Monday, October 9th is the day observed in many communities as Fire Protection Day, and it would have been well to inaugurate the possession by the town of one of the very best types of auto fire engines with an appropriate celebration of the day. It is usual to observe the day by having an ordinance passed giving the Fire Department the authority to inspect premises. This is done with co-operation of civic organization and a thorough inspection of the business districts is made in order to eliminate all fire traps. It is a clean-up movement to get rid of the accumulation of trash that invites fire. Perhaps Gettysburg will have to wait until next year to observe the day with a legal inspection but the citizens could observe it by an inspection of their own properties to get rid of the things that would help to prevent fires.

PAYMENT OF FIRE ENGINE

Held Up Until October 16th by the Town Council.

Because several members of the Town Council found something to object to as to the auto fire engine, the Council balked in the payment of the engine on Tuesday evening last at their regular meeting. In the end however, they will do the stunt of paying because there is nothing else to be done. Litigation would be a species of foolishness the Town Council could not be credited with of resorting to, for it would be litigation sure to be lost and the town pay the costs. The new fire engine differs slightly from the one ordered, six cylinders instead of four, yet the changes are sure to give a better and stronger piece of machinery and there would be no reason to object to payment, there being no increase in price by reason of betterments. The engine has stood the severest tests of the underwriters and has been approved and why there should be a wrangle when it comes to payment for value received is not quite clear. The wrangle lasting hours was precipitated by the report of the committee on purchase of engine as follows:

"We, the undersigned members of a committee appointed by the president of the Town Council, Charles B. Dougherty and A. B. Plank, chief of the Fire Department of Gettysburg, Pa., to investigate the relative merits of different auto driven fire engines, do hereby further report that we have personally inspected and examined the auto driven fire engine furnished by James Boyd and Brother, Incorporated, and have witnessed the tests made by the representative of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and find that the said engine is in accordance with all the conditions of the specifications and agreement entered into by the said James Boyd and Brother, Incorporated, on March 9, 1916—except that it has a six cylinder instead of a four cylinder engine, and that the pump has no gibs, which changes, in our judgment do not detract from the value of the machine itself.

"We find further slight damage to the two outer dual tires of the engine which damage is taken care of by the guarantee of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Philadelphia.

"The report of the representative of the National Board of Fire Underwriters contains a suggestion that a larger air adjustment be applied to the carburetor or a new carburetor installed and we suggest that this be required.

"The following items contain in the agreement with James Boyd and Brother, Incorporated, have not yet been furnished: six Hilton couplings, and we recommend that the sum of two hundred dollars be retained from the settlement until such time as all conditions and requirements are complied with.

"And the said committee and the said chief of the Fire Department of Gettysburg, Pa., further recommend that the Burgess and Town Council of the Borough of Gettysburg and the Gettysburg Steam Fire Engine Company accept the said engine and settle for same.

The report of the committee was signed by A. B. Plank, Martin Winter, Harry D. Geiselman, George F. Eberhart, J. A. Lentz, and C. H. Wilson. The member not signing was James McDonnell.

Ross Boyd Had No Bullet Wound.

An autopsy of the body of J. Ross Boyd, killed while hauling a load of grain into Cashtown last week failed to reveal a bullet wound. The wound under the shoulder was deep but it was discovered that it was not made by a bullet and was made by the fall and wagon passing over him. Dr. Woerner, the coroner, and Dr. J. McCrea Dickson, made the examination.

The new Silks are here in great variety.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CROWDED

MANY MORE CHILDREN ATTENDING THAN ESTIMATED.

The High School is Short in Room in Many Ways—New Building Only Solution.

At the September meeting of the School Directors the figures were presented of the demands that would be made upon them for accommodations. These demands were so large that the School Directors saw no way out from the difficult problem of crowded school rooms and school houses, but the building of a High School building. This was resolved upon and the money for same has been put up to the voters to be decided at the election in November.

The estimated figures at the September meeting were conservative, figures that were absolutely sure to be on the safe side. They were High School 185, Meade School 247, and High Street Building 253, or total of 685.

The proof that the Directors have moved carefully and upon dependable conditions is shown by the fact that the actual figures of pupils now in our schools is more than 50 in excess of the estimated figures. The number of children now in the High School is 205, Meade School 258, and High Street Building 279, a total of 742. If the non-resident pupils, 63, are not counted, the fact stares every voter in the face that the children of the town have crowded the accommodations of the schools beyond their capacity.

According to the State requirements no rooms should have more than 35 to 40 children. All the rooms are at their limit and one in Meade Building and three in High Street Building away beyond the limit with 46, 47, 48, and 53 pupils. Space is at a premium in the majority of our school rooms. A visit to the school rooms will furnish the absolute proof of these facts. There are rooms so packed that there is no room for classes to be seated in front of teachers but recitations are given by pupils from their desk seats.

When the High School is visited a shortage of room is everywhere noticeable. Rooms and halls are packed and even two rooms in the Culp residence are giving little relief. The auditorium holds 171 and the High School of 34 more than the seating capacity can not be gathered together into the main auditorium. The necessary breaking up of the High School is not good for a number of reasons.

It is no answer to the problem to wonder where all the children come from, or to compare the present with the past, when the town was perhaps one-third or one-half smaller. Compulsory attendance has brought all the children into the schools. Industrial growth that has brought added prosperity to the business of the town has added children to the population and the fact is not able to be denied that school accommodations are short.

What are the voters going to do about it? The greatest assets of the town are the children and the greatest help to be given them is education. To keep up the standard of our schools another building is absolutely necessary. Not to give it is to cripple the educational advantages of our children. So vote for the loan for a new school building.

SEQUEL OF AUTO KILLING.

Court Fittingly Punishes Beer Helped Driving.

The killing of George Donahue, of Harrisburg, formerly of York Springs, told in our last issue has had a speedy sequel in the trial of Clarence Leroy Bates, who admitted in the Dauphin county court that he ran down and killed Donahue. He was sentenced to one year in the Dauphin county prison, costs and fines aggregating $200.

The chief witness for the State was pretty Martha Gross, the 18-year-old girl with whom Bates had been riding. While a crowded court room listened, the blue-eyed girl almost breathlessly told how she sat in the racing car she had seen the men in the road ahead, how the car never slackened its speed, and how later she had a confused impression of a jar "as if we'd bumped over a rut."

In imposing sentence, President Judge Kunkle declared that it was the court's intention to "set at a higher standard, the sanctity of human life in Dauphin county." Bates, who is a married man with two children, had been representing himself as a single man to the Gross girl. Miss Gross and her parents rode with Bates. She admitted that the party stopped at several hotels and that everybody had a bottle of beer.

Sureness Spells Speed!

When you set out to make a call in person, you always assure yourself that you have the right address.

In telephone-calling, equal sureness as to the proper telephone number saves not only time but positive annoyances both to you and to the person who may be called in error.

The sure way is first to consult the directory carefully—not trusting to memory—and then listen carefully while the operator repeats the number back to you, correcting her if she has misunderstood.

Then, too, at times, when a number is called in error, it is well to remember that the person called to the telephone by mistake is never at fault and deserves the utmost courtesy.

FARMERS IGNORED BY REPUBLICANS

But Democratic Administration Quickly Gave Them Justice in Rural Credits.

Don't forget Mr. Farmer, that through your Farmers' National Congress, National Grange, National Farmers' Union, American Society of Equity, and similar organizations you have for years demanded and have importuned Republican administrations for legislation you needed.

WHAT DID YOU GET?

Through all the years since 1864 the Republican Party was deaf and blind to the farmer's financial needs. This in the face of the fact that successful systems of Rural Credits were in operation throughout Europe for a century. When this great Democratic measure was put to vote in the Senate on May 4, 1916, only five Republicans dared vote against it! Three of them were on the sub-committee who wrote the Republican Platform of 1916.

Was it because you were not Big Interests? You were, many of you, highly financed, and High Finance held the mortgage—and to that extent you belonged to High Finance. But you paid big interest to associate with Big Interests. A stack of wheat wasn't as good collateral as a stack of scraps of paper held by a stock gambler. Nor did the Political Bosses of the Republican Party care to give you financial justice. They were too busy "protecting" themselves.

THE PROMISES OF THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM OF 1912

written in courage and honesty and with sympathetic understanding of the needs of every honest American interest—HAVE BEEN KEPT.

The Republican Party refused to do these things, which the prosperity of the American Farmer required.

The Republican presidential candidate, Charles E. Hughes, denounces the Democratic party and President Wilson for having done these things.

Where Does Your Interest Lie?

(From Farmers' Pamphlet issued by the Democratic National Committee.)

BURLESON'S "THREE STRIKE"

"The Democratic party seems to have enough capacity to run the Post Office Department. Postmaster General Burleson has deposited a check for $5,200,000 with Secretary McAdoo, being the profits of the fiscal year of 1916."

Sounds like a Democratic campaign orator, doesn't it?

But it isn't! It is the Philadelphia Public Ledger, a paper that is supporting Hughes, telling its host of readers about merely one of the deeds of the Wilson Administration.

Continues the Ledger:

"The Secretary of the Treasury replies that his department has experienced the sensation of receiving a postal surplus only three times, and those three times have been under the Administration of President Wilson and Mr. Burleson. But we have no hope that this will satisfy Mr. Hughes. He will tell the next audience he gets hold of that the service is not nearly so good as it used to be when Postmaster Generals were Republicans and there was a deficit every year, the amount being something over $17,000,000."

IF THE G. O. P. ELEPHANT COULD SPEAK THE TRUTH

VOTERS of the U. S. A.—

We, the Republican party, being at our wits' end and desperate, put it up to you:

For nearly four years now a Democratic Administration has been in power. Contrary to every law of reason, every principle of progress, the country is at peace and alive, nay, humming with prosperity. Business is rushing. Wages are high. The only discontent is the discontent of those who are reaching for bigger chunks of plenty.

We are flabbergasted. All this has happened during a period when the rest of the world has been agog, when international crises were impending on all sides, when we would have sworn only Republican statesmanship could pull the nation through.

No war has engulfed us. No panic has paralyzed us. No nation has with impunity continued to infringe upon our rights.

We can't deny what has been done. All we can do is take our oath we could have done it better. How, we do not know. If only we said it loud and long enough we hoped the country would believe us.

But the country is busy and our voices grow hoarse. We are having a hard time.

Woodrow Wilson has nothing to show but what he has accomplished. He has none of the glamour of the what-might-be. We, on the contrary, have our old promises and policies, mellowed by age, but still bearing the stamp of the nation's solid interests. Protection, privilege, government by influence—surely the country has not given them their last trial.

Wall street is with us. Big business is with us. But O, Voters, we confess it, we need you. Don't keep looking at the peace and prosperity around you. Try to get our point of view. Whatever Wilson has done, the man is a Democrat, and neither Federal Government nor Federal offices were meant to be forever in such hands.

Let's forget issues and talk as friends. Turn him out and give us a chance!

PRaises Wilson's Stand IN BEHALF OF SUFFRAGE

The action of the National Suffrage Association at Atlantic City, N. J., in rejecting by an overwhelming vote the proposal to make the suffrage movement a partisan annex of the Republican campaign, was further emphasized by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, "the sage of suffrage," in an interview published in the Philadelphia Press, a staunch Republican organ.

"The President, in his speech to the convention, promised all he could carry out," said Dr. Shaw. "If he had promised more we would have known that he could not carry it out."

"Not the Republicans alone, nor the Democrats alone, can bring suffrage. If it could be done that way I would favor it. But it can't. We must get enough Democrats and Republicans together to do it."

WOULD THE "CROOKS OF 1912" LET HUGHES KEEP PLEDGES?

Candidate Hughes is running on a platform of promises.

The safest—the only trustworthy—method of judging the future is by assessing the past. Candidate Hughes' promises should be weighed in the light of his past performances as an executive. Here are some of his promises made when he was a candidate for Governor of New York and set opposite them are his performances to correspond with them:

CANDIDATE HUGHES SAID:	GOVERNOR HUGHES DID:
-------------------------------	-----------------------------

"I believe in labor legislation and the great benefits that have flowed from the wise conduct of labor organizations."	Refused to appoint a practical railroad man to the State Public Service Commissions, although urged to do so by organized labor.
--	--

"I want to see fair justice done to everybody who works."	Vetoed the bill, giving women schoolteachers equal pay with men for equal work.
---	---

"Every practical measure for the real benefit of labor will have my support"	Vetoed the full-crew railroad bill.
--	-------------------------------------

"I promise the enforcement of the law with equal severity and in equal justice to all—corporations and individuals."	Vetoed bills urged by State Tax Commission to compel corporations to pay their franchise taxes promptly and to authorize the Tax Board to equalize special franchise tax valuations.
--	--

"The conditions of transportation in New York City are a shame and I purpose to find out the proper method of procedure and whether legislation or administrative action is necessary."	Vetoed Coney Island five-cent fare bill which would have saved the people of New York city $1,500,000 a year. Accomplished nothing to correct street-car overcrowding.
---	---

"I shall devote myself with renewed zeal to the people's service. My administration shall be an unbossed administration."	Blocked in his efforts by the bosses of his party, Gov. Hughes resigned in his second term to accept appointment to the United States Supreme Court.
---	--

Mr. Hughes is not the Republican party. He would be no more able to make good his promises as President than he was as Governor of New York. If he were elected President he could deliver only so much as the Republican bosses—the "Crooks" denounced by Roosevelt in 1912—would permit him to deliver.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NEWS

COMMENTS BY REV. MILTON WHITENER

On Topic for Oct. 8, "What New Work Can Our Society Undertake?"

Comments on the C. E. Topic for Oct. 8, 1916, are by Rev. Milton Whitener, Littlestown, Pa., and topic is "What New Work Can Our Society Undertake?" Ex. 14:8-15.

The glory of life is growth. In fact, the grand condition of life is growth. When growth stops decay begins. This is the law of nature, rooted in the plan of God for His world. It is true of all life. But it is particularly true of that part of life with which men have to do. God did not intend that any man should rest upon his achievements or be satisfied with his attainments. He made him with the capacity to grow. There is always something better beyond. We never quite come up to our best. For when we have wrought splendidly today, we have fitted ourselves for something more splendid tomorrow. The inspiration of life and that which gives life its zest is the capacity to do more work and do it better, to reach more people with the gifts given us to bestow, to find new and richer methods of service. So it happens that whenever any man becomes conscious that he has this God-given capacity he reaches out and he asks himself, "What new thing can I do that I may be better?"

What is true of life in an individual is true of a Christian Endeavor Society. It was meant to grow. It must grow if it would live. And if its leaders are alive, wide awake, they are constantly asking, "What new work can our Society undertake?" The end of the vacation season is a particularly good time to ask this question. Vacation is a time of recreation, and true recreation bids us to new and mightier effort, not only on the old lines which we followed hitherto, but on advanced lines. If we are healthy, physically and morally, we ought to ask for more and larger opportunities of service. We ought to do it, not only that our Society might grow, but that we may grow ourselves.

It is a difficult thing to outline any special number of things that may be undertaken. For what is new work for one Society may be old work for another. But there are a few suggestions that might be mentioned. And the first is that we should pray more. Prayerless work is fruitless work, and we want to work not simply for the mere excitement of the activity, but to accomplish some good. We must begin, not with the hands nor the head but with the heart. More love for God leads to more love for man, and love for God draws us irresistibly to His feet for communion and direction. Prayer is that which shall give us power to do the new work we may undertake. It will give the assurance that we are linked up with God, and that God is acting through us. Pray more. That will be new work for a great many societies.

Then open the eyes a little wider, and opportunities for service will reveal themselves. Too many of us go through the world with our eyes closed. The Lookout Committee often ceases to look out. It thinks of the great things far away that it would like to do, while all around in common life there are challenges to show somebody the way to be better. "Lord open the eyes of this young man that he may see," was the prayer of the prophet, and it needs to be repeated with earnestness and constant pleading. It will be new work to a great many societies just to look out and get a vision of the opportunities waiting to be utilized.

Then lend a hand. Let there be a good live committee on Evangelism, and let this committee go out and enlist the boys and the girls of the community in a definite service for Jesus Christ. Most societies are lacking in this respect, and yet it is one of the prime purposes of the Christian life—to bring somebody else into the fellowship which we enjoy. We need to be fired with the passion for souls which animated and controlled the life of Him whom we call Master. The Society may also exercise a protecting influence over the lives of the young people of the community. When it sees them about to be led to do some unworthy deed it may remind them of their responsibilities, and of the great Helper Who stands by ready to strengthen and to support. Lend a hand. It will be new work, and it will be good work, the kind the Master did.

Living on Your Nerves.

Do you live on your nerves? Possibly you do and boast of it as if it was something to be proud of. Despite ideas to the contrary few people ever work themselves to death. It is usually the combination of business and pleasure at a strenuous pace which does the damage.

It is so easy to go a little further on your nerves when you know that physically you need rest and relaxation. There may be times of stress and strain when it is justifiable to exert every atom of endurance but this is only under special circumstances. To practice it regularly in order to over crowd one's days is certain to result disastrously.

There is much in our modern life with its diversity of interests which tends to excite and irritate the nervous system. We should make an effort to offset this as much as possible. One may find pleasure and diversion without rushing madly about under high pressure.

People who live on their nerves until nervousness becomes chronic find that it brings a train of evils, indigestion, worry, excitability, temper, and restlessness. All great handicaps to efficient work and rational pleasure.—Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., LL.D., D.Sc., Commissioner of Health.

TONOLINE IS BEAUTY AID, AN- NOUNCES SPECIALIST.

Mildred Louise Talk of Interest to Women.

As health is a first aid to beauty this story, told by Mildred Louise, beauty specialist, of Boston, Mass., is of unusual interest.

"I can recommend no better health giver than tonoline," said Mildred Louise.

"I was for many months a victim of stomach trouble and nervousness. I had suffered terribly from pains that followed eating. Headaches also would add to my worries. Poor digestion finally brought on nervousness."

"Relief came, however, when I took the advice of several women who said, 'Take tonoline.'"

"Not long after I started the tonoline treatment, my patrons began to remind me of the improvement in my condition. And because health is the quickest way to beauty, the improvement was particularly noticeable in my face."

"What tonoline really did for me I cannot say. I am so grateful that I am very willing to recommend tonoline publicly."

Tonoline is a purely vegetable preparation which goes to the seat of common maladies—stomach and kidney trouble, catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, liver ailments and impurities of the blood—and quickly restores proper action. Tonoline is being explained daily to many people at People's Drug Store.

Notice—As tonoline is a wonderful flesh builder it should not be taken by any one not wishing to increase his weight ten pounds or more. Although many reports are received from those who have been benefited by tonoline in severe cases of stomach trouble and nervous dyspepsia, chronic constipation, etc.

It was after the stone laying ceremony, and a wire was sent to the builder with the news. "Stone laid with great eclat." The builder, smothering an awful oath, muttered, "Another new foreign cement!" and flung the missive from him in passionate disgust.—London Globe.

"Do you think a memory for dates helps a man?"

- Helping Nature.
- The skin does more than act as a covering for the body. It is one of the principal organs for throwing off waste which the body is constantly forming just as fire forms ashes in the process of burning.
- The kidneys and the liver, the lungs and the skin all co-operate to get this waste out of the system.
- In the case of the skin there are millions of little pockets called sweat glands which have this work to do, for sweat is nothing more than a watery extract of the waste products of the body.
- By living moderately, eating sparingly of meat and drinking plenty of water one makes it easy for the system to throw off waste matter, and thus overstrain on these organs is prevented. By drinking plenty of water especially the digestive apparatus and the kidneys are kept in such condition as to avoid many of the troubles of later life.

PRESIDENT WILSON SPEAKS

TO HOST OF YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUBS.

Declares There is Only One Way to Change Foreign Policy, for War Against Peace.

President Wilson made an address last Saturday to 3000 members of Young Men's Democratic Clubs in which many plain truths were told. He spoke as follows:

I am very much obliged to you for giving me an opportunity to say some very plain things about the present campaign and about the future policy of this country, because a body of young men are very much more interested in the future than they are in the present. While some of us who are older look back upon long experience and are able to take certain measurements which may not have occurred to you, nevertheless your feeling is that the world lies in front of you and not behind you. You want to know what sort of world it is going to be and what sort of guidance you are going to have in that world and what sort of co-operation among you will be effective for the service of the world into which the years ahead of you will bring you.

I do not know where from Republican quarters you have got any suggestions as to what is going to happen in the years to come. This is a most singular campaign. I will not say an unprecedented campaign, because I happen to remember that other parties have tried to get into power by saying nothing whatever; and I also remember with interest that they never succeeded, because the people of the United States are an inquisitive people, and if you ask them to trust you with the great power of their government they really want to know what you are going to do with that government if they trust you with it. They may not insist upon your telling them what you would have done in circumstances now past and gone but they will insist upon your telling them what you intend to do in the future.

For a little while I myself expected that this campaign would be an interesting, intellectual contest that on both sides men would draw upon some of the essential questions of politics in order to determine the predominance of parties, but I am sorry to say that I have found nothing to interest me, and I am a little bit ashamed of myself that I should have expected it. For I should have known better. There is a fact running through all our political history of which I ought to have reminded myself. The Democratic party, my fellow citizens, is the only party whose life has persisted and whose vigor has continued throughout all the history of this nation, and that has not happened by accident. It has happened because it is the only party I venture to say, all of whose life has been governed, or at any rate inspired, by a definite principle, an absolute belief in the control of the people, their right to control, their capacity to control their own affairs and shape them in the common interest.

The Democratic party has committed many errors, the Democratic party has made some fatal mistakes of action, but the reason it has lived, the reason it is the only party that has apparent immortality in our politics is that it is the only party that has consistently based its beliefs upon the things and the convictions that underlie all American history, the belief in the government of the people by themselves and their own representatives. It has witnessed the life and death of two great parties, and unless I am very much mistaken, it will witness the early death of another.

It witnessed the life, decadence and disappearance of the Federalistic party. It witnessed the life, the increase, the demoralization of the Whig party. And then there appeared upon the scene the Republican party, first of all organized for a great and definite purpose, to prevent the spread of the institution of slavery into the free portions of the United States. That object they greatly accomplished. And then there seemed to descend upon them the spirit of the Federalistic and the Whig parties, and ever since then the increasing demoralization of that party has been evident.

What was the spirit of those parties was one of the limited control of the affairs of the nation by those who had the biggest material stake in the prosperity of the country. Some of them professed this very openly and some of them practiced it without professing it. The theory of Alexander Hamilton, who founded the Federalistic party, was that the best kind of government is government by guardians and trustees, and that only those who represent the great material enterprises of the country are capable of acting as trustees and guardians. So that throughout the period when the Federalistic party was in control the whole idea was that a small group of carefully planning men should govern opinion and control administrative action in the United States.

The Whig party, when it arose, had a somewhat more liberal conception, but before it had lasted very long it acted upon the same principle, that the great body of the people is not capable of doing its own thinking, and that a small group of persons must be allowed to do its thinking for it, and the Republican party has inherited that idea. Not the idea of government by the people, but a government for the people, and concern it. It was a foregone conclusion that parties that held such principles could not live in America. The only reason they existed for a short time was that they did rally to their support some of the fine planning, enterprising minds of the country, and that so long as those men had the vision of the general good, so long as those men had the conscience of public service, great things were done; and great things were done; but just so soon as they put in possession of the government men who were attorneys of special interests the decadence of the party inevitably ensued. The Republican party as now constituted and led believes in government by the attorneys of special interests. They are perfectly willing that the attorneys of the people should appear before them and plead for the rights of the people, but they are not willing that the counsels which determine action shall be participated in by the attorneys of the people.

One of the things that they are most constantly talking about is the protective tariff, and there was a time when a very wide taking of counsel entered into the formation of our tariffs, but not toward the end. Then a small group of selected counselors always determined what the items of the tariff should be. The only persons heard were the attorneys for the special interests, and the attorneys of the people could batter at the door as they pleased and never get a hearing. The end of such a party was foredoomed and now the party that believes in the people and tries to do things for the people has been in power for four years, and what has happened? It has redeemed some of the promises falsely made by the attorneys for the special interests. And it has done something more interesting than that.

You remember that four years ago there was a great body of spirited Republicans who said, "This thing is becoming a fraud and a sham. We have been taking care of some people, but we have not been taking care of the great body of the people. We have not thought about their morals, we have not thought about their health, we have not thought about their rights as human beings, and we insist that you put the policy of this party in our hands, or we will go off and form a party of our own," and thereupon the great Progressive party sprang up—great, not because it turned out to be more numerous than the party from which it had succeeded, though it did that, but because it had the real red blood of human sympathy in its veins and was ready to work for mankind and forget the interests of a narrow party. I want to pay my tribute of respect to the purposes and intentions of the men who formed that group in our politics.

But the interesting thing is that, inasmuch as they did not get the opportunity, we took advantage of our opportunity to do the things they wanted to do. And I want you young fellows to understand the reason for that. There are standpatters in the Democratic party. There are men sitting down hard on the breeching strap. There are men who are trying to hold back and to serve what they believe to be conservatism, though it is really reaction, but the interesting thing about the Democratic party is that those men are in a small minority in its ranks, whereas in the party of the opposition they are in a majority and are in control. The interesting things for all politicians to remember is that the progressive voters of this country all put together outnumber either party. I venture to say they outnumber both parties put together. This country is progressive, and if you youngsters are going to be in the running, you will throw in your fortunes with the party of which the progressives have the control.

I am a progressive. I do not spell it with a capital P, but I think my pace is just as fast as those who do. It does not interfere with the running and I am very much astonished to see the company that some gentlemen who spell their name with a capital are keeping. They are engaged in the interesting enterprise of trying to capture a party which is fortified against them and refusing to enter a party which is already captured by those who believe in their principles. The intellectual processes by which they arrive at their conclusions are entirely obscured by my intelligence.

But you will notice that a party that merely wants control does not have to have any principles. That is the reason why surprise that a program has not been announced is unreasonable. Look over the ranks of the supporters of the Republican party. Did you ever see a more motley company in your life? Did you ever see elements so absolutely contradictory of each other as the elements of that party. If they moved in any direction they would have to move in many directions; and if I am trying to get into power by the support of the people that do not agree with one another, it is very dangerous for me to profess my own opinion.

Back of that party are those who inject into our politics the politics of Europe; but not all who have that purpose in mind are on the same side. Some want to inject those politics in order to move in one direction, and others want to inject them in order to move in exactly the opposite direction. In these circumstances it is not wise to announce your direction. Some of them are Progressives, or were, and profess themselves dissatisfied with the present leadership and guidance of the party, and others are so well satisfied with it that they are afraid that the entrance of this new element will disturb their favorite plans, and so, looking at each other with suspicion, they have only one enthusiasm, and that is the enthusiasm to "get in." I see in my mind's eye this great motley company enthusiastically united in a great drive for possession.

Unfortunately, however, one thing has become reasonably clear, my fellow citizens, and it is a very serious thing indeed. One thing has become evident, not because it was explicitly stated, for nothing has been explicitly stated, but because it is unmistakably implicit in almost everything that has been said. Am I not right that we must draw the conclusion that if the Republican party is put into power at the next election our foreign policy will be radically changed? I cannot draw any other inference. All our present foreign policy is wrong, they say, and if it is wrong and they are men of conscience, they must change it. And if they are going to change it, in what direction are they going to change it?

There is only one choice as against peace and that is war. Some of the supporters of that party, a very great body of the supporters of that party, outspokenly declare that they want war, so that the certain prospect of the success of the Republican party is that we shall be drawn in one form or other into the embroilments of the European war, and that to the south of us the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some American investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage. I do not find that anybody else's counsel is taken in respect of the policy that this country should pursue with regard to Mexico except those who have hitherto acted as the counselors for the vested interests in Mexico. The whole country is acquainted with the gentlemen who have been consulted. There is no concealment even by themselves whose attorneys they are. They have talked to me. I knew exactly what they wanted. I have declined to give it to them, and now they are going where they think that they can get it. And there is every reason, on the surface at any rate, that their calculation is well founded.

There is a more serious aspect even than that. There is an immediate result of this thing, my fellow citizens. From this time until the 7th of November it is going to be practically impossible for the present administration to handle any critical matter concerning our foreign relations, because all foreign statesmen are waiting to see which way the election goes, and in the meantime they know that settlements will be inconclusive.

The conference which is being held with regard to Mexican affairs is embarrassed every day by the apparent evidence which is being produced that hostility to Mexico is being traded upon by one of the great political parties. These gentlemen may reconcile these influences with patriotic purpose, but it is difficult for all of us to do so. And the one thing I want to lay emphasis upon in this connection is this: that a great fundamental, final choice with regard to our foreign relationships is to be made on the 7th of November. Some young men ought to be interested in that. Some men who want to see the future cleared of the passion which governs the present ought to be interested in that. Men who love to see a great peaceful force expended by America for the service of the world ought to be interested in that. Singular, isn't it, that should have been the only thing disclosed by the opposition? But I suspect that they are well enough content with many of the things that have been done in domestic legislation, provided they can get in and control them. Let me illustrate it. Take the federal reserve system, the great banking system by which the credits of this country were hitherto locked up—the credits of the average man have been released and put into action; the great system which has made it possible for us to absorb two thousand millions worth of American securities held on the other side of the water, which have been offered for sale; nearly, if not quite, 50 per cent. of the whole body of the American securities held abroad, a thing that would have been impossible otherwise.

You know what one of the many things the Republicans promised and never did was to reform the currency system. They did what they have always done in such circumstances. They had a thorough inquiry and report made without any purpose of following it up. The report was made after long and expensive inquiry and much interesting travel, by a committee presided over by the late Senator Aldrich, and that report is a very valuable document. It is full of a great deal of useful information. I dare say that in any report the useless predominates over the useful, but if you know what you are looking for you can find it in that report. And when we came to do this thing that ought to have been done long ago, but which because of a kind of paralysis which cannot be called infantile, it was impossible for the Republican party to do (I should call it a paralysis of the will), we found that we could take the skeleton of what we wanted to do from the Aldrich report, but that we could not take the heart of it.

We so absolutely altered the heart that Senator Aldrich himself denounced the thing that we produced. Now the heart of the Aldrich plan was a single central bank which was susceptible of being controlled by the very men who have always declared the financial policy of the Republican party, whereas the heart of our system is not a great central bank, but a body appointed by and responsible to the government and, by the same token, responsible to the people of the United States. The hand is the hand of Esau, but the heart is the heart of Jacob, and that heart is the heart of the Democratic party, the control by representatives of the people of the things that concern the whole people.

There was universal hostility among the bankers of this country, not unanimous, but universal, to the adoption of the present system, and all of that opposition had its impulse from that central group which knew that that was going to happen which did happen, that they were going to lose their grip on the treasury of the United States. They are perfectly content, my fellow citizens, to take over the federal reserve system if they can adjust it the way they want it adjusted and determine who is going to run it. Similarly, they are perfectly content to use the federal trade commission provided they can select the commissioners and suggest whom they shall consult.

They are perfectly willing to have a tariff board, at least they were willing to have it before we created it, provided they can determine beforehand what its conclusions are going to be by determining the quality and antecedents of the men who compose it. You can very easily determine beforehand what is going to happen. For example, if you want certain things to happen, select the most eminent, it may be the most honest corporation lawyer in the country, and put him in the Supreme Court. His character is not going to fail you. He may have as good a character as any man who ever lived, but his training is going to determine everything that he sees. You do not have to do these things corruptly; you only have to do them astutely. Similarly, they would be perfectly content to control the board which is to govern the rural credit system. They would be perfectly willing to appoint the board that is to control the development of the merchant marine and the regulation of marine charges in the carriage of freight on the high seas, perfectly willing. The only thing that makes them uneasy is that Democrats should be running these things.

I am not saying this in jest. I am not saying it to make a point. I am saying it out of my personal experience. Until the present administration, Wall Street controlled the actions of the treasury of the United States. I do not like these words, "Wall Street." Because there are some men in Wall Street who have vision, there are some men who see things large and see them true, there are some men with fine statesmanlike gifts, and I do not like to include them, but the main impulse in Wall Street is not given to it by them. When I say "Wall Street" I mean some parts of Wall Street, and I leave you to select the parts. Wall Street thus selected formerly controlled the treasury of the United States. Why, my fellow citizens, it even had a desk in the treasury department.

Many of these gentlemen honestly believe that only they understand the interests of the country, and they were genuinely uneasy to see the treasury conducted without their consent. Again and again I have received intimations from these quarters during the last three and a half years that they would very much like to be consulted, and I have invariably returned the same answer. I have said, if these gentlemen have any advice to give, I shall be most pleased to receive it. All they have to do is to ask to see me and tell me in the frankest way, like any other American citizen, what they think ought to be done. But they would not accept that kind of an invitation. They wanted to be sent for, and they wanted to be reasonably certain before they went that their advice would be taken. They did not want to come in on the same terms with other citizens of the United States offering their advice as to what ought to be done.

It has been interesting, and it has been very amusing, that any set of men should think that they had the absolute by the wool, that they knew what the interests of the country demanded and nobody else did. So that since they would not volunteer to come, we have made shift to conduct the treasury of the United States without their assistance. And it must surprise them in their private thoughts to have to admit that it has been better conducted than ever before in our generation—more successfully as business administration and infinitely more helpfully to the general body of the American people. Such assistance as the treasury of the United States can legitimately extend in times of financial stress used always to be extended to Wall Street. Now it is extended to the country.

It was no doubt shocking to see the money deposited in country banks and not in Wall Street, but the country banks knew how to use it, and they were very much nearer the great masses of the people who need it than were the great depositaries of financial resources in New York. I would not have you consider me prejudiced against New York City. Why, gentlemen, the great city of New York is one of the most vital parts of the United States, but the city of New York does not consist of the gentlemen of Wall Street. And I would have you understand that I am very much prejudiced against them, as they are against me. No, not prejudice, but aware.

They have suffered another inconvenience. They used to be able to do a great deal in the way of legislation by means of a lobby, the people knew very little about, and the lobby, thank God, has disappeared. I do not mean the legitimate lobby, the lobby that will go to hearings of committees and argue their case in public with the reporters present, but I mean the buttonholing lobby; I mean the lobby that uses influence and not argument, that uses inducement and fact, that understands some special interests and does not give a cent for the general interest. That is the lobby I mean, and the little cowards scuttled the minute they were mentioned. I had only to say in a casual interview with the representatives of press that there was such a lobby when all at once the rats began to scuttle.

So the instrumentalities of control have been destroyed, and the object of the present campaign on one side is to rehabilitate them. Why do I say that, because I see not more than you do. You see who are controlling the present campaign on the Republican side. There is no concealment about that. Two years ago the Republicans fancied that there was a reaction against the Democratic party, because it had been going some. I admit.

And so in the campaign for the congressional elections two years ago some of their most distinguished leaders spoke very indiscreetly. They said that what this country needed was a business administration, which from one point of view we might have concurred in if they had not added this definition that what the country wanted was to return to the "Good old days of Mark Hanna." Further definition was unnecessary. The good old days of Mark Hanna. No thoughtful man in this country would propose that we should return to the methods of political control practiced by Senator Hanna.

It happened that at that time a very lovely, trustworthy gentleman was president of the United States. I mean William McKinley. He had no part discreditable to himself, so far as I know, in the political arrangements and the expenditure of unlimited money in campaigns for which Senator Hanna was responsible. But now you will notice we have returned to the good old days of Mark Hanna in the Republican party. Some of the very gentlemen who were prominent in that odious regime are now at the head of affairs in the management of the Republican campaign. The lieutenants of Mark Hanna represent the choice, the determinations and, so much as we can conjecture, the policy of the Republican party. What they want to do is to get control and then determine the policy in private conference. We are not going to be taken into their confidence.

It would not be wise for them to take us into their confidence. They want to control, possess. Those are the magic words for them. They do not think we have sense enough. They do not think we have coherence enough. They do not think a great body of free people know how to hang together in its own cause, and that a little body of men that always hangs together can in the long run manage the people, and it is up to us to show them that that is impossible. The people of the United States have frequently been fooled, but they are not often fooled several times in the same way, and this barefaced attempt to fool them in the same old way is, in my judgment, one of the most futile things that was ever attempted.

Henceforth, understand that so far as I am concerned, I will excuse these gentlemen from answering questions, because I know they cannot answer them; that if they answered them, they would lose half of their following on any particular subject and the confidence of the people of the United States all together. Therefore I for my part do not intend to ask them any questions. I have other uses for my mind, because I am on to the game already.

What it is our imperative duty to do, my fellow citizens, is to make everybody we know understand what the Democratic party stands for and what it intends to do. It has begun a great process of liberalization for the business of this country, and it intends to strengthen that system at every point, extend it wherever it needs extension, strengthen and fortify it against all attacks and once for all make good the domination of the American people in their own affairs. On that program we are challengers to all comers. We have shown our hand. It cannot be doubted. All you have got to do, if you want to know the lines of the future policy of the Democratic party is to extend the lines of the past policy of the Democratic party and you have an absolute standard. You know which way we are going. The question is, do you want to head us off, and it is for the young men of the country in particular.

I do not know, for my part, how the spirit of a nation gets into one generation after another, but I do know by long contact with young men that the spirit of a nation is perhaps more intense in the generations coming on than in the more sophisticated generations that have become deeply immersed in particular lines of business. The point of view of the young man is of the horizon. He looks abroad upon a wide world because he is choosing his path. He looks curiously upon many of the aspects of human affairs because he hopes and intends to play a part of importance in some of them. And so the young men have the impulse, the momentum, the whole vision of the people more intensely in them than the older men, who have grown a little tired; some of them grown a little pessimistic, some of them grown a little discouraged, some of them have had many hard knocks and have suffered many disappointments, but who yet, nevertheless, with stubborn courage and steadfast strength are themselves struggling toward the light. And they are calling to the young man, "Come, recruit our ranks. Some of us are falling by the way. We need your force. We need your hope. We need your confidence. We need your capacity to get together and stay together and follow the lead. Come, strengthen the great army of men who have their eyes lifted to those horizons where shines the light of hope for men of every nation and of every generation, where rests the reassurance of the world's peace and of the world's happiness."

FOUR DEATHS IN THE TOWN.

Elsie Catherine Welty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Welty of Baltimore, died under most distressing circumstances at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yeagy, South Washington street, last Saturday afternoon aged 3 years and eight months, after an illness of a few days from diphtheria. Mrs. Harvey Welty, mother of the child, is ill at the home of her parents with the same disease. Mrs. Welty came from Baltimore some time ago on account of the illness of her mother, who was in a critical condition. She contracted diphtheria last week, the case being reported Friday. The condition of the mother is reported as improving. The funeral of the child was held Sunday with burial in the Evergreen Cemetery. She leaves besides her parents an older sister and baby brother.

Silas M. Horner, a highly respected farmer and Civil War veteran of Mt. Joy township, died at his home last Friday morning aged 72 years, 10 months and 20 days. Mr. Horner had been in usual health until about a week ago when he began to complain of pains in his head. He had been working in the corn field the day before his death and came to the house before noon and went to bed. He was stricken with apoplexy about 5 o'clock Friday morning and remained unconscious until death. Mr. Horner was a veteran of the Civil War, having served in the 99th Regiment, Pennsylvania Vols., and was a member of Post 9 G. A. R., of this place. Dogs and Kerosene

You've seen a stray dog—thin, scary and half-starved. Let some one take him home and give him real food—he's likely to turn out to be an excellent watchdog and a fine companion for the children. Good food makes the difference.

It's the same with your lamp and oil stove. If they're smelly, smoky and bothersome—if you get hazy light and unreliable heat—you're using the wrong kind of kerosene. Give them

ATLANTIC Rayolight OIL

There are many days when it isn't cold enough to start the fires, yet it's too chilly to be without any heat at all. A Perfection Oil Heater can be used in any room in the house without smoke, soot, ashes or unpleasant odors. See them at your dealers'—$3.50 to $5.00. You can be ideally comfortable regardless of the weather.

Go to the store that displays this sign: Atlantic Rayolight Oil For Sale Here. You'll find it a good place to buy regularly.

and you'll enjoy the fine, clear, brilliant light and the steady, radiant heat you've always wished for. Good kerosene makes the difference.

Atlantic Rayolight Oil is refined to the n'th degree, from the highest grade crude petroleum obtainable. Always ask for it by name.

It doesn't smoke, smell or char the wick. It burns slowly—therefore is most economical. If you believe in preparedness, you'll load up a barrel of Atlantic Rayolight Oil. Be sure to look for the brand name on the barrel.

ELLIS L. ORVIS.

For Auditor General,
JAMES B. MURRIN.

For Congress,
A. R. BRODBECK.

For State Senator,
THOMAS J. BRERETON.

For Assemblyman,
D. C. RUDISILL.

READ WILSON'S SPEECH.

Every Democrat and American should read President Wilson's speech to be found on the second page of Compiler. It was delivered last Saturday to the Young Democratic Clubs. It gives overwhelming reasons why the Democratic party has survived since the beginning of our government, because it stands for government of the people. It makes clear what the accomplishments of the Democratic party have been in the past four years in being a government of the people and it makes it equally clear that the opposition stands for class government against the people. Read it and give President Wilson your support.

MANUFACTURERS FOR WILSON.

H B Endicott, Boston, and George F. Johnson of Binghamton, owners of the largest shoe factory in the world, and Mr. Johnson known as a Republican in the past, issued the following statement this week, boosting Wilson. They state:

"We shall vote for Mr. Wilson. We believe Mr. Wilson deserves well of his country. He has handled the foreign situation with fine courage and remarkable ability. He handled the recent railroad crisis in a masterly manner. We believe he took the only possible means to avoid a strike.

"He has earned and deserves the confidence of the people. He has attended strictly to the business of the government. He is not wasting time criticizing other candidates, but is attending to the business that the people employed him to attend to.

"As a matter of interest to this community, a few figures are furnished. January 1, 1914, we employed 6291 people; January 1915, we employed 7286 people; January 1, 1916, we employed 9704 people; September 28, 1916, we employed 11,768 people.

"At the present rate of increase January 1, 1917, we should employ 12,900 people. Percentage of increase from January 1, 1914, to January 1, 1917, 105 per cent. We believe the re-election of President Wilson and the return of the present administration to power will be best for the country. It means another four years, under a wise, faithful and patriotic president.

"In making this simple statement, it is not our wish, or thought, to urge any of our employees to vote against their own convictions. We yield to every employee the same right that we claim to ourselves; namely, the right to vote his own personal convictions. But if this statement of our own belief influences the vote of others in favor of the president, we shall be pleased and gratified."

A WILSON VICTORY.

Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic National Committee in an interview this week predicts with absolute certainty the re-election of President Wilson on Nov. 7. He says:

"Reports that I have received from all parts of the country convince me that the President has the people with him, and that they are going to back him up with a fine, big majority on election day. And, furthermore, they are going to co-operate with him in enacting more legislation in the interest of the people.

"In the East, the West, the North and the South, the people are happy and contented. The country is at peace. Prosperity rules the land as never before. Factories are working to their limit. The banks, always a barometer of business conditions, are bulging with deposits. President Wilson has brought peace and prosperity to the country, and that is the reason that the American people are for him. My reports show that the Senate will remain overwhelmingly Democratic, and that the Democratic majority in the House will be increased to upward of 50.

"The recent speechmaking tours of Mr. Hughes have shown him in his true light. His addresses have been one continual tirade of faultfinding; they have been evasive; he has advanced not a single constructive idea; he has straddled on every question of importance before the people. Mr. Hughes has tried hard to find an issue in this campaign, but has failed dismally.

"The Republican nominee knows

that the President has the people with him, because he has acted merely as their spokesman and has endeavored to carry out their wishes on all questions affecting the welfare of the country. On the other hand, the people knew that Mr. Hughes is the candidate of that small group of persons who seek special privileges at the expense of the people of the country—that same group which was rampant at Washington until Mr. Wilson became President and restored the government to the people.

"Mr. Hughes tried hard to make the eight-hour law an issue of the campaign, but after days of generalities he was forced to admit that the President was right. He now says that he believes in the eight-hour day. That is what President Wilson said, when he declared that the subject was not arbitrable. Mr. Hughes says he believes in investigation; so does President Wilson, and he has provided for a thorough investigation of all of the issues involved in the railroad employees' demands, with the exception of the eight-hour day, which the Republican nominee finally admits that he believes in. This belated statement of Mr. Hughes is in line with all of his utterances. He is an opportunist pure and simple.

"Furthermore, President Wilson has a definite program while Mr. Hughes has nothing but words. "The stand taken by the Republican nominee on woman suffrage furnishes convincing proof of the straddling ability of Mr. Hughes. First, he tells its opponents that he is with them, and then tells its proponents he is with them. His great interest in the question is shown by his failure to vote when it was submitted to the voters of his State last year. The suffragists have no doubt where President Wilson stands. He went to New Jersey when the question was submitted to the voters last year and cast his ballot for suffrage.

"I firmly believe that the longer Mr. Hughes remains on the stump the more certain becomes the re-election of President Wilson. Mr. Hughes has not yet answered a single question that has been put to him. He has found fault with the President's handling of international affairs, but he hasn't seen fit to take the public into his confidence as to what he would do in similar circumstances. Likewise, he has found fault with the President's handling of Mexico, but he has been as silent as a clam as to what he would have done. On not a single public question does Mr. Hughes take a positive stand."

Two Well Known Veterans, Silas M. Horner and George W. Adams.

Mrs. Elizabeth Weikert died last Friday, Sept. 29, at her home on Breckenridge street, this place, from paralysis in her 73rd year. She had been in poor health since May 30th and was taken seriously ill about three hours before her death. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eli Sowers of Carroll county, Md. Her husband was Charles Bowers and after his death 41 years ago she married William Weikert, who died about ten years ago. She leaves three children, John Bowers of Stratton street, George Bowers of Breckenridge street, with whom she made her home, and Edward Bowers of Greenmount. She also leaves four stepchildren, Amos Weikert of Gettysburg, Mrs. James Crouse, Eli Leech and Mrs. Jonas Furney, all residing along the Emmitsburg road, near town. Funeral was held on Monday by Dr. R. S. Oyler, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Ida Campbell Cassat, wife of David Cassat of Gettysburg, died Monday morning in her 62nd year. She was in failing health for about three years. She was born in Emmitsburg and came to this town shortly after the battle. She is survived by her husband and the following children, Norman Cassat at home, Mrs. Myrtle Kohler of Harrisburg, William Cassat of McSherrystown, Samuel Cassat of York, and Milton Cassat of Lucknow, Dauphin county. She leaves four sons and three daughters, Benjamin Long of Cresson, James Long of Emmitsburg, Jacob Long of Chicago, Charles Long with whom she made her home, Mrs. Savilla Moore of Johnstown, Mrs. Elizabeth Brunback and Mrs. Kate Allen of Hancock. She leaves one sister, Mrs. Nancy Jane Kelly of Harrisburg. Funeral was held on Wednesday by Rev. Mr. Byrd, interment in the cemetery at Hancock, Md.

No community should be subjected to a traffic it does not want. Democratic principle demands that each community shall settle for itself such internal problems. Brereton has advocated this for years and will work and vote for a measure to submit the question of Local Option to the electorate.

FOR YOU---AND YOURS

Every man, woman and child in the United States should be thankful that Woodrow Wilson has been President during the great European War that has turned the "world upside down." Millions of men have lost their lives or been crippled for life. Millions of children have been made orphans. Millions of wives have been made widows. Millions of parents have been made childless. Countries have been devastated and billions in monetary loss has already taken place, and with all that President Wilson during the most trying time in the Nation's history, has kept our country out of war, our young men at their homes and occupation, and not on battle fields in suffering and probable death.

Mr. Brodbeck has stood and will stand by President Wilson. He has demonstrated this in the past. As a candidate for Congress he deserves your support for these and many other reasons. If you wish to continue peace and prosperity vote for President Wilson and those you know will stand by him.

Mr. Brodbeck's experience as a Member of Congress will place him in a position to give even greater service to this District than it has had in the past.

A. R. BRODBECK.

Henry Ford within the last several days made this statement: "I am a Republican, but I am for Wilson because I believe he can do more to enhance the prosperity and insure the peace of this nation, than any other Candidate."

Why the Coconut Has Eyes.

Who can tell why the coconut has three eyes? Luther Burbank explains it this way:

Cocoanuts generally grow at the edge of the sea or rivers. The nuts are surrounded with a thick husk with a waterproof covering, so that when they drop into the water they will float. In floating the three eyes are always on top.

Once in the water nature gets busy. From one of the eyes there comes a shoot, which develops broad leaves like sails. The wind catches the sails and wafts the coconut on a journey sometimes many miles long. As it sails the other two eyes develop roots, which at first grow among the fibers of the woody husk.

In good season the coconut is swept upon another shore, perhaps on another island. The roots embed themselves in the soft earth, the sail becomes the trunk, and a coconut palm is growing where none grew before.

The "Tired Business Man."

Are not all business men tired? If not why do we hear so much about musical comedies and vaudeville performances that are constructed especially for the purpose of resting and refreshing the tired business man?

If there is any one claim that has been conceded for ages past it is this: Fatigue is much more fatal to a man than to a woman. We seldom hear of a tired washerwoman or a tired housekeeper. Nobody ever wrote a musical comedy for tired schoolmarm. It has always been held that if a man has to work at night he must sleep in the daytime. But everybody knows that a woman can walk the floor all night with a sick baby in her arms and still be able to perform strenuous household duties next day. "Man's work is from sun to sun"—that being the limit of his endurance.—Southern Woman's Magazine.

Bird Organs.

The German peasants in the Harz mountains teach their birds to sing by a unique instrument known as a bird organ. It consists of two round sheet iron cylinders, one inside of the other. The lower one contains water. The upper one is manipulated by a series of small weights and pulleys, which cause it to settle slowly downward, the air being expelled through a whistle, which has several modifiers to give variety to its tones. When the upper cylinder has come down the required distance a spring operates the weights that raise it again to repeat the sound.

Starting Trouble.

"It's going to be war to the knife," declared the suburban man, who was feeding his chickens.

"What now?" asked his friend.

"Why, Banks sent me a box of axle grease and advised me to use it on my lawn mower."

"Well?"

"Well, I sent it back and told him to use it on his daughter's voice."—London Mail.

Advice.

"There's one sure way to get along in this world."

"What's that?"

"Quit fretting about the things some one else has and keep hustling for the things that so far no one has and you can get for yourself if you're first on the job."—Detroit Free Press.

A Scotchman's Preference.

Lord Strathcona was fond of stories of his Scottish countrymen. One that pleased him highly I have heard him often repeat, says Beckles Willson in "The Life of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal."

A Scot was once boasting that Scotch apples were far better than the Canadian variety.

"Really," exclaimed his friend, "you can't mean that!"

"I do mean it," was the response. "But I must premise that for my taste I prefer them sour and hard."

One story told of his native town, delighted him, although he professed incredulity. The superintendent of the Forbes Sabbath school had prepared a list of questions for the junior class—name the strongest man, the wisest man, the meekest man. Only one child—a cynical little elf she was—answered correctly. "Samson, Solomon, Moses." All the others wrote or printed opposite the queries the name of the hero of their hearts—Lord Strathcona. There might be stronger and wiser and meeker men, but the junior class was not "acquainted wi' em."

Meaning of the Motto.

Young Canfield was a household decorator, and one day he was called to the country home of an eccentric man, father of a large and interesting family of daughters.

One of the daughters acted as his guide through the house that he might give an estimate for decoration. His attention was caught by a motto, framed and prominently displayed over the door of the room of each girl, which read:

"Learn to Say Yes."

"Would you mind," asked the young man, "telling me what that motto means?"

"Oh," exclaimed the young woman, with a blush, "that's one of father's ideas. There are ten of us girls, you know."—National Monthly.

A Game of Catch.

Somebody once twitted John Graham on the way David Dudley Field and he were drifting apart, he remaining in the harness as a criminal lawyer, while Field was selected by his state for the duty of codifying her laws.

"It is simply a game of catch between Field and myself," he answered. "He tries to put up as many bars as possible, all uniformly strong. Then I go around and try them and see how many weak ones I can find."

"Which beats, Mr. Graham?" he was asked.

"Oh, I think I do in the long run," he responded. "Field never succeeded in keeping me out as many times as I have succeeded in breaking in."

Mumification.

"I tell you, sir, kissing the hand that smites you is nothing to what I saw in the hotel this morning."

"What was that?"

"The porter was blacking the boot that had kicked him last night."—London Tit-Bits.

Political Platforms.

"What's the platform?"

"I'll let you in on a secret. I've been voting for forty years and never read a platform in my life."—Kansas City Journal.

90 SIMON AND MOSES' NEW DAWG

International Cartoon Co., N. Y.

To Every True American

Woodrow Wilson's fight is your fight.

He has put equal justice above special privilege, human rights above property rights, national honor above organized greed, and democracy over all.

The Child Labor law, the Federal Reserve act, the Clayton Anti-Trust law, Workmen's Compensation, Rural Credits, the Shipping bill, the Federal Trade Commission, the Seamen's act, the Tariff Commission and the Agricultural Extension act may well stand as the ten commandments of America; his international policies proclaim to the world America's recovery of the ancient faith, America's renewed devotion to democratic ideals. Woodrow Wilson has given you prosperity with justice and peace with honor.

What are you giving him?

How much does it mean to you that business is no longer at the mercy of panics, that credit and enterprise have been released from captivity, that the standards of America are now the standards of civilization, and that the heart of the land is not torn by the wailing of widows and orphans, the slow shuffling of the blind and the maimed?

America today is no less a battle-ground than in 1776 and 1861, and Woodrow Wilson is no less the champion of liberty than Washington and Lincoln.

Money, however, is the present weapon. It takes cash to run a campaign.

Only from the people, the one master that he has served, can Woodrow Wilson receive campaign aid. Clean money for clean purposes.

To contribute is your duty even as it should be your privilege. Send it in now.

What one of you would not fight to defend your home and your country against foreign foes? Fight, then, against enemies within that hold greater menace than any foe without.

Do not serve notice upon all future Presidents that faithful service is folly, since the electorate is without gratitude, interest and intelligence.

Every dollar contributed is payment on America's insurance policy.

Don't let it lapse.

Even as you have received generously, give generously. Even stint to give. America was built on sacrifice.

The Old General Muster.

Under the old militia system that prevailed about seventy years ago the states were divided into districts, each one having a company to which all men of soldier age were required to belong and give a few days each year to military drill.

Every year there would be a "general muster," at which the various companies would gather and under the command of a plumed and bespangled officer would perform the various evolutions and go through the manual of arms that would strike with awe the surrounding crowd of women and children gathered to witness the heroic displays of fathers and brothers.

These general musters were great events in the times of our grandfathers. They were social as well as military and often adorned with feasts of warlike provender. In one of his speeches Tom Corwin told of a general muster in which the brave militiamen, with bayonet and sword, charged on a pile of watermelons and cut the red hearts out of the enemy.—Columbus Journal.

Quite Different.

A tenant of Lord Halkerton, a judge of the Scotch court of sessions, once walked on him with a wolf countenance and said: "My lord, I am come to inform your lordship of a sad misfortune. My cow has gored one of your lordship's cows, and I fear it cannot live." "Well, then, of course you must pay for it." "Indeed, my lord, it was not my fault, and you know I am but a very poor man." "I can't help that. The law says you must pay for it. I am not to lose my cow, am I?" "Well, my lord, if it must be so I cannot say more. But I forgot what I was saying. It was my mistake entirely. I should have said it was your lordship's cow that gored mine." "Oh, is that it? That's quite a different affair. Go along and don't trouble me just now. I am very busy. Be off, I say!"—American Law Review.

Difference In Complexions.

The difference in the complexions of people is due to the varying amounts of pigment or coloring materials in the cells of the skin. Very light people have very little pigment; very dark people, those with dark eyes and black hair, have a great deal of this coloring material in their cells. A great many people are neither light nor very dark. They have less than the dark complexioned people and more than the light complexioned people. When the hair turns gray it is because the pigment has disappeared. As this is due to the loss of this coloring material, dark complexioned people turn gray sooner than light complexioned people. The structure of the skin showing how these cells are made in layers can be seen by examining the skin with a microscope.

Water Birds.

Water birds, singular as it seems, are the only ones whose skins never by any chance get touched by water. So long as they are alive and long after they are dead they float with an air chamber all round their bodies, cunningly contrived of waterproof feathers closely overlapping each other. Thus, in a sense, water birds may be distinguished from all others by the fact that they never wash, though we can hardly blame them for that, because if water could penetrate between their feathers the poor things would never be dry.

"Yarbs" We Have Known.

What has become of the elderly lady who in the seventies and earlier always referred to an "herb" as a "yarb"? The word has gone out of use. About the meanest "yarb" was a bitter weed named "thoroughwort." Then there were camemille, dockroot and dandelion. In their miserable partnership, lobelia and catnip. These things were "steeped," and you took them or had them thrust upon you "for your blood."—Exchange.

Beans.

The bean is comparatively new as an edible. Our common bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country during the sixteenth century and now is represented by over 150 cultivated varieties.

Quite Likely.

"Miss Booful won't marry me. She's trying to sell stories to the magazines and says she's wedded to her art." "Just hang around awhile, old boy, and the first thing you know she'll divorce her art for nonsupport."—Chicago Herald.

Meissonier Told Them.

Meissonier once at the opening of his pictures had none of women. A friendly critic was curious to know the reason. Meissonier replied, "They can paint themselves better than I can."

The Amateur Farmeress.

Farmer—Now let me see if you can milk that cow. Girl (by vocation bar maid, regarding the horns)—Which handle's for the milk and which for the cream?—London Punch.

Power of Love.

So long as we love we serve. So long as we are loved by others I would almost say we are indispensable. No man is useless while he has a friend. —Stevenson.

Jealous Thing!

Miss Plainleigh—See my new engagement ring? Don't you think my fiancé showed excellent taste? Miss Ryval—Oh, yes—in the selection of the ring!

Psychology of Laughter.

In his book, "A Raw Youth," Dos-toevsky has a page on laughter, which he regards as the surest test of the heart, and suggests that a girl may well choose her husband (when in doubt) by the quality of his laugh, which will be a symptom of his nature, for to know how to laugh is a gift. "A man will sometimes give himself away completely by his laugh, and you suddenly know him through and through." Most essential in good laughter is sincerity and freedom from malice. A sincere laugh, free from malice, is gayety.

"A man's gayety is what most betrays the whole man from head to foot. Sometimes one will be for a long time unable to read a character, but if the man begins to laugh his whole character will suddenly lie open before you. And so if you want to see into a man and to understand his soul don't concentrate your attention on the way he talks or is silent, on his tears or the emotion he displays over exalted ideas. You will see through him better when he laughs."

Story of a Faithful Dog.

Animals, and especially dogs, can be most sincere mourners. Near Greyfriars church, Edinburgh, stands the statue of a dog bearing this inscription:

GREYFRIARS BOBBY.

From the life, just before his death. A TRIBUTE To the affectionate fidelity of GREYFRIARS BOBBY. In 1858 this faithful dog followed the remains of his master to Greyfriars Churchyard, and lingered near the spot until his death in 1872. Erected by the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, 1872.

Think of it! Fourteen years! In the winter Bobby lay under a flat tombstone for shelter, and he was found dead on his master's grave one morning after having waited patiently for fourteen long years. Surely a remarkable instance of animal fidelity.

Quick Work.

"Married a telephone girl, you say?" "Just so. The honeymoon wasn't half over before she had his number." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

Nothing is so high and above all danger that is not below and in the power of God.—Orid.

How Catarrh is Contracted.

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucous membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere. Advertisement.
